THE REPUBLICAN RALLY.

"Rah, Rah, Teddy! Rah, Rah, Teddy! Rah, Rah, Rah, Rah, Teddy!" was the rally call which announced the assembling of Republican forces on Monday night. Such a parade, such costumes, such yells and cheers, such torch lights and illuminations, such political enthusiasm, surely have never before been known at Wellesley!

As the various clubs assembled in front of College Hall, the din grew momentarily louder, and flags and banners multiplied with most astonishing rapidity. College Hall represented the largest club, and above the roar their cheer could sometimes be heard:

"Ten Toots for Teddy!
Toot toot toot toot toot toot toot toot toot toot
'Teddy's Tooters."

And the Eliot, smaller in numbers, but no less enthusiastic, loyally contributed its share to the general rejoicing.

"We adore, we adore,
Theodore, Theodore,
And what's more
We will roar,
Theodore—Roosevelt."

Nor were the Freshmen to be outdone, for "Roosie's Rooters" from the Noanett were all present in workingman's blouses and red neckties, each with a dinner pail swinging at her side.

It would be impossible to tell of the costumes and cheers of all the houses. Suffice it to say that they were all present and all in evidence. By a few minutes past seven the procession was ready to start, Teddy's Tooters, with their white suits and caps and red, white and blue sashes at the head, nor far behind them were Roosevelt's Ready Rooters from Norumbega, led by Miss Knight and Miss Ball on horseback and attired in truly wonderful costumes.

Just as the procession was ready to start a tall figure appeared. A wild shout of "Uncle Sam!" burst forth, as the figure took his place at the head of the victorious army. Uncle Sam it was; Uncle Sam in the regular dramatic committee bloomers, to be sure, but Uncle Sam nevertheless. All honor to Uncle Sam—and Sallie Reed!

The procession paraded up the hill and down again, following the road past the chapel, and finally entered the Barn. When the chairman, Mr. Cortelyou, at last had succeeded in calling the house to order, speechmaking began. It is almost unnecessary to mention the speakers. They are men who have been too much before the public eye to need commendation from us. We were very fortunate in having with us Senator William B. Allison (Harriet Foss), Senator Frye (Vena Batty), Secretary Hay, (Blanche Wenner), Mr. Root (Mabel Seagrave). Their speeches were, as usual, strong and individual. Miss Sadie Samuel as Mr. McCarthy, an Irish voter, was irresistibly funny.

All good things they say must come to an end, and at half-past nine the rally was over. The enthusiasm, however, had by no means worn itself out, and will undoubtedly return with renewed vigor on Election Day, when we cast our votes for Theodore Roosevelt!

BARNSWALLOW PLAY.

The Barnswallow play of last Saturday night was unusually interesting, first of all from its intrinsic value, next from the fact that it was written by Clara Stanton More, 1904, whose play, "Women is Kittle Kattle," was given with such success in the spring of 1903, and also because this was the first Barnswallow play of the year. Last Saturday's play, whose title is "A Play," augured a successful year at the Barn, but it also set a very high standard for future plays, whether original or not. The plot of Miss More's play, which is a three-act comedy, is briefly as follows: William Van Horn is an aspiring playwright, in spite of the disapproval of his family. He is also in love with Miss Bettina Phillips, who is about to visit the Van Horns. Before her arrival he receives a letter from his friend, Tom Gordon, who desires his help in his love affair with "the sweetest, dearest girl in the world," whom Van Horn immediately recognizes as Miss Phillips, although meant to be his cousin, Katherine Stewart. He communicates his mistaken idea to his cousin, who being in love with Gordon, is also very much disturbed. They seek some consolation by planning to give an amateur production of Van Horn's play, to be acted by the guests at the house party. A coach is secured, who is Miss Patricia Sparkles, formerly a soubrette, and who has appeared in the first act as a society reporter. It is necessary that her presence should be unknown to all but Van Horn and his cousin, therefore she is concealed behind a screen, whence she overhears successive interesting scenes between Van Horn and Gordon, Katherine and Gordon, and Van Horn and Bettina. Her "passionate" interpretation of the part of the heroine is interrupted by the appearance of Bettina, who very naturally misunderstands the attitudes of Van Horn and the dramatic coach. Her indignation is heightened by the appearance of a newspaper article, for which Miss Sparkles is responsible, which hints at her engagement to Van Horn. The third act discloses the dressing room on the night of the play's presentation. There is a good deal of very clever repartee in this act, in which Bettina at the last moment relents and takes the part of heroine in the play, to Van Horn's hero.

The cast is as follows:

|---|---|
| Wm. Van Horn, Jr., | Helen Daniels |
| Tom Gordon, his friend, | Daphne Crane |
| Mr. Van Horn, Sr., | Sadie Samuel |
| Bettina Phillips, | Helen Edwards |
| Patricia Sparkles, | Esther Schwarz |
| Katherine Stewart, | Crete Kimball |
| Mrs. Van Horn, | Luna French |
| Hawtree, | Louise Bascom |
| Bradley, | Marie Abbott |
| Sally Tyree, | Edith Ball |
| Jenkins, | Sara Woodward |

The individual work done by the cast was very strong. Miss Daniels's acting cannot be considered from the standpoint of amateur work—like all her work it was a masterly interpretation. Miss Edwards' acting was very natural and graceful. Miss Schwarz did some very original work and gave much zest to her part. Miss Kimball was irresistible as Katherine. The irascible Mr. Van Horn and the motherly, propitiating Mrs. Van Horn were acted to perfection by Miss Samuel and Miss French. Miss Sara Woodward was as usual excellent in her part of Jenkins the butler. The unusually good thing about the play was that there was no weakness in the cast.

Meeting of the Student Government Association.

A meeting of the Student Government Association was held Friday, October 28, at 4.15, in College Hall Chapel.

Reports were read from the Executive Board and the House Presidents. The report of the Faculty-Students' Conference which was held on June 7, was read. Miss Silcox, 1905, explained the report more fully.

Miss Gillespie, 1905, spoke of the debating clubs and urged the support of the Association for the clubs.

Miss Seagrave, 1905, reported that definite plans for a fire brigade were being made.

The president then discussed some of the rules pertaining to quiet, after which the meeting adjourned.

"Entered as second class matter, November 12, 1903, at the post office at Wellesley, Mass., under the Act of Congress, March 3, 1879.

The class of 1907 is to be heartily congratulated upon the large number of its members who have received honorable mention for excellence in their Freshman work. The list is one to be proud of, for not only is it the longest ever published, but better still, as President Hazard has pointed out, it is the longest in proportion to the number of girls in the class.

Honorable mention, however, is a matter of interest not only to 1907 but to the college at large. It is most encouraging to find that, even with the many outside interests that are constantly taking up more and more of our time, so many have the sincere delight in the purely academic side of college life manifested by so fine a record.

During the past year the pessimistic belief has often been expressed that, engrossed as we are by our sports, social affairs, settlement work and numberless committee meetings, academic work must needs be somewhat crowded out. Perhaps some of us do give too much time and thought to these outside things—yet, deep down in the heart of each student there is a glow of pride in the standard of scholarship set by the College and her class, and a determination that through her it shall not be lowered. To some this is only the occasional inward prick that stimulates the hasty finishing of an overdue paper, or the writing up of neglected notes, but to others it is the vital, ever-present interest which forms the inspiration of every-day life. That the latter number is increasing, 1907's list of Freshman Honors proves. Let this list, then, stand as our pledge for more scholarly work—for higher standards in all things academic, and may the present record be left far behind by 1908's list of Freshman Honors.

Considerable inconvenience has been caused in the NEWS office this fall by people who do not send in their articles promptly. In some cases this has caused delay in the publication of the paper, in other cases it has either meant that the article had to be omitted entirely or that it lost in timely interest by being postponed a week. We therefore wish gently but firmly to remind Faculty, Alumnæ, students and whomsoever else it may concern, that "all copy should be in the editors' hands by Friday noon of each week," unless special permission for late copy has been granted.

We should like to say also to the corresponding secretaries of all college organizations that they can neither be too prompt nor too careful in the reports which they may have to give to the News from time to time. Notice of meetings or other occurrences which are to come on Saturday or Monday should be sent in to the editors in advance; for otherwise it is by no means easy even for half a dozen people to keep constantly informed of all the interesting little happenings of College life,—happenings which are lawful property of the College paper. The paper is yours; do what you can to make it useful to yourselves and to your friends.

Just here it may not be out of place for us to express our appreciation of the willingness with which people have usually responded when definitely asked to write for the NEWS. There seems, however, to be a wrong idea prevalent in regard to the form of the articles. Girls sometimes meet our requests with the modest avowal that they cannot write well enough. This is hardly credible. We do not care for literary flourishes. What we want is good, plain, straightforward English, such as any girl whom we have asked can certainly use.

COLLEGE NOTES.

Misses Jefferis, Megee and Lang entertained the Philadelphia Club Monday afternoon, October 24, in the Senior Parlor.

A handsome new chair in Flemish oak with the College seal to match the table given by 1905, has lately been presented to the Student Government office by the class of 1906.

Miss Helen Page, 1907, has returned to College after an absence caused by a sprained knee.

Dr. Barker and Mrs. Jones entertained Mrs. Durant, Miss Massie and Miss Harriet Hawes, at dinner, Tuesday evening, October 25, on the occasion of Dr. Barker's birthday.

The midweek prayer meeting of the Christian Association was held in College Hall chapel, October 27. Miss Emerson presided, and reports were given of the summer conference at Silver Bay. Miss Kendrick gave a short history of our student volunteer work. It was organized in 1887 by Mr. Moody at Northfield for the purpose of Bible study. In 1893 the young woman's branch was organized but it was not until 1899 that this work became a separate organization carried on by the Young Woman's Christian Association, and holding a conference of its own. Other addresses were given. Miss Plummer described a typical day at Silver Bay and Miss Helen Cook spoke of the social side of the life there. She closed her address by urging every girl to attend the conference next year both for her own sake and for the sake of those who will not be able to go.

On Friday, October 28th, Mr. Phelps of Cambridge gave a lecture in College Hall chapel on the "Unity of Parsifal." Mr. Phelps has just completed a translation of Parsifal which is soon to be published and was therefore able to make his lecture peculiarly vivid. He spoke first of Wagner's genius which conceived simultaneously all the elements of the opera, scene, drama, music, etc. He then showed that Parsifal is unique in the perfection of its unity since the drama is developed by the constant reiteration of the same words and episodes. He traced the psychological development of Parsifal through the awakening of his pity.

Miss Marion Talbot, formerly of 1905, visited the College over Sunday, October 29.

Miss McKeag addressed the Freshmen Tuesday afternoon, November 1. Her subject was "Methods of Study."

The Colorado Club gave a luncheon at the Inn on Monday, October 31, to its new members, Ruth Londoner, Genevieve Pfeiffer, and Ada Davis, of 1908. The table was decorated with crimson ivy leaves, and these leaves served also as placecards. The membership of the club is small, this year, numbering only eight, but many pleasant excursions are planned and the club expects to make up in enthusiasm what it lacks in size.

THE OPENING OF POMEROY HALL.

Pomeroy Hall, the first completed building of the new quadrangle on the west plateau, was formally opened by President Hazard on Wednesday evening, October 19. The occasion was a very enjoyable one, and the moments of lighting the hall and dining room fires after dinner by the President, assisted by Miss Davis, the head of Pomeroy Hall, were novel and happy experiences to many present, as this is the first new dormitory we have had on the campus since Wilder Hall was opened in 1900.

The hall fire was lit first, and as Miss Hazard placed burning strips of colored tissue paper on the hearth, she said:

"Here is red the color of love,
And pink is the tint of the rose,
And gold is the sunlight above,
And white is as pure as the snows.
And we lay them all on our hearth
This altar stone of ours,
And we watch them faring forth
Changed by mystic powers,
Into something higher
By the fire.
Into heat and light,
Intangible, yet known
Flaming, glowing bright,
To glory flown."

Then followed the offering of sentiments—good wishes, uttered as the well-built fire burned brighter and brighter:

"Happy hearthstone glow
With youth and love untold
While maidens come and go
And Pomeroy Hall grows old."

This was Miss Hazard's sentiment.

Next came Miss Davis's.

"When President Hazard lights the fire,
She grants to each her heart's desire.
Fire-side friends and fire-side cheer—
To make us glad throughout the year."

Then all others present who had sentiments to bring came forward out of the merry gathering of the "Pomeroy family" and offered them. They are rich in well-wishing, though they may not be of equal merit in form.

"May our hearts and hearth be ever as bright
As they are in Pomeroy to-night."

"May every care and sorrow
Or grief and worry sore
Burn at this spacious chimney
Until it is no more."

"We look in the fire and seem to read
A number of prophecies there.
But each one tells us in different words
And each with assurance rare,
That there is not a hall on all the grounds,
That with Pomeroy one may compare."

These and others similar in spirit followed, and after them the Wellesley cheer.

Then President Hazard led the way to the dining room which had been prepared in the meantime, and that fire was also lit. All gathered around it, and President Hazard told something of the circumstances under which the building came into existence. It was through the influence of Mrs. Whitin of Whitinsville, who has always been a good friend of Wellesley, and whose absence from this occasion of the opening of Pomeroy Hall was sincerely regretted by all present. It is the hope and expectation of the President, however, that she may be present at the lighting of the fire on the drawing room hearth later in the season. Mrs. Whitin, as all well know, is the one to whom we are indebted for the existence of our present Astronomical Observatory Her interest in Wellesley College inspired a like interest in her sister-in-law, Mrs. Pomeroy, whose will contained the provision of which this building is the outcome. Pomeroy Hall was to be built for the convenience of the Astronomy students, but as there is no suitable place in the immediate vicinity of the observatory for erecting such a building, the west plateau was chosen as the nearest location. After working carefully over the possibilities of the matter, the authorities decided that Pomeroy Hall should be one of the "Quadrangle buildings."

All the minor details of the building, including the system of lighting were considered with much deliberation, and even the dining-room equipments were chosen with great care. The dishes bear the distinctive "W," the use of which is to be confined to the quadrangle buildings only.

President Hazard has left the mark of her administration on the corner-stone and in various other places, the sight of which will always call to our minds well-cherished memories in after years.

FREE PRESS.

All members of the College are invited and encouraged to write for this column. It is a place where a blue pencil fears to tread, and where individual opinion may flourish almost unpruned. The veto power of the editors is seldom exercised here; but please remember that Free Press is not strictly a synonym for adverse criticism. EDITORS.

I.

It seems very unfortunate that the Freshman class, which is always the largest in College, should have no opportunity to make use of the material it must have, because of having so short a time in which to organize the sports. For the Athletic Association has convinced us that their decision in regard to the Freshmen is just. Yet the more classes there are to compete, the more exciting is the contest. The plan suggested to have Field Day in the spring, allow 1908 to enter the lists, and thus add greater zeal to the contest, is an experiment worth trying. 1906.

II.

Every fall there is a rush and a bustle to get ready for Field Day. When it is finally announced hardly any captain feels that her squad is doing the best work it could do. This year the time for training has been much shorter than usual, which means the girls will not be as well prepared as heretofore. Considering that we are interested in athletic form, as well as prowess, and that this can only be gained by faithful training during a longer period than is afforded from the beginning of athletic work this year until November fourteenth, it seems that we ought to postpone Field Day until spring. 1905.

III.

College News,

GENTLEMEN:—

The insertion of the following notice in the next News would do much to assuage the feelings of the outraged Democratic Party. If it seems too violent, it might be cut down.

It would be a delicate attention, too, on the part of the News to precede the notice with something of this sort—possibly in red or purple print:

"The College News takes this opportunity to acknowledge an error in last week's issue, and to correct it by printing the following notice."

DEMOCRATIC DIGNITARIES.

Norumbega Cottage begs leave to shout from the top of the flag pole on the hill that base wrong has been done to her, and that she is not straight Republican! She is proud to report that a modest but extremely select number of her inmates are sufficiently enlightened to recognize the superior claims of Alton B. Parker.

The Democratic Dignitaries of Norumbega would, however, exonerate Miss Gertrude Knight from any responsibility in the misstatement in last week's News. The Democratic Party still entertains a high respect for Miss Knight, and urges her to console herself with the reflection that in these trying times even the mort virtuous shall not escape calumny.

(Signed) THE DEMOCRATIC DIGNITARIES of Wellesley.

IV.

If a body meet a body
coming across the campus, —and if, to drop to prose, the one girl bows or smiles, even although she has not been introduced, need the other girl respond with a blank stare? In the Old World, among the peasantry, where natural courtesy, founded on human kindness, is to be seen at its best, strangers who meet by the roadside exchange kindly salutations, as sons of a common earth and common heaven. We fellow-students, who know one another, if not by name, yet as daughters of the same Alma Mater, might desire, it would seem, some form of recognition that should denote a sense of comradeship. It would appear to the present writer that we should be especially careful to include the Freshmen in this,—though of course we could not include the Faculty! G.

V.

Some of the members of 1908 have probably not as yet heard that it is not considered good form to read notices on the bulletin boards of other classes. We are very sure that they would not have been observed violating this unwritten law if they had realized its existence. And while we are speaking of college customs, we may as well mention that it is usually considered in better taste to make way for members of the Faculty in the corridors and at class-room doors. These be little matters, but they are matters in which a new class is apt to be severely judged, and we trust that 1908 will not take amiss these gentle words of warning!

ARTESIAN WELLS.

Last spring was formed a plan of digging several artesian wells on the college grounds, for the purpose of supplying water to the boilers in the power-house. Seven wells were dug, three in the hollow east of the power-house, and four just behind the ice-house. The water was tested by the State Board and found exceptionally pure—much purer, indeed, than the water supplied by the town of Wellesley, so it has been decided to make use of it in all the College buildings.

A water main is to be dug, connecting with the pipes of the Wellesley waterworks, and the town supply is then to be cut off at the College gates. In this way the College will have two supplies, for if any accident should occur to one of the pumps or boilers on the grounds, the connection with the town waterworks is all ready for use.

The power-house boilers are now being supplied with water from the artesian wells, and the books show an average saving of $180 per month over the former expense. It is hoped to have the connection with the various college buildings established before the close of the year.

By an attachment at the power-house, the water pressure can be raised to 100 pounds, in case of fire, so that the new wells can be made of service in that way also.

THE PRESIDENT'S RECEPTION.

Those who were at the opening of Billings Hall could not but realize that it is well-fitted to become a desirable place for many of our College functions. Its adaptability to purposes somewhat less formal than those of the concert hall was demonstrated Thursday afternoon when President Hazard and Dean Pendleton held their annual reception to the Freshman class in the main hall in the new building.

The class of nineteen-eight was invited all at one time instead of in three divisions as its predecessors have been, yet there was a conspicuous lack of the overcrowding so often an unavoidable drawback to our enjoyment of College receptions. Twenty members of the Junior class acted as ushers to present the guests to Miss Hazard and Miss Pendleton who stood at the further end of the hall. At the refreshment tables, extending down one side of the room, Miss Chandler, Mrs. Newman, Miss Olive Davis, Miss Breyfogle, Miss McCaulley and Mrs. McDougall presided. Among the outside guests present were Mr. Alpheus Hardy of the Board of Trustees and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Hazard of Syracuse, New York. The entire building was opened, and the guests took great pleasure in examining the attractive library on the second floor and in looking down from the gallery upon the animated scene below.

Altogether it was a most enjoyable occasion, especially pleasant as a welcome to nineteen-eight. L. M. B.

PARLIAMENT OF FOOLS.

SONNETS OF A FRESHMAN.

III.

Ah! which of all the learned Muses nine,
Shall I invoke to touch this virgin pen,
To condescend to this low earth again,
And nobly to inspire this theme of mine?
My inmost feelings I can not confine
Within the limits of a daily theme,
But still of Authorship I fondly dream,
Grant me some future flights, O muse divine!
'Tis late, the warning note of ten hath rung,
And Math. unlearned doth fill my soul with gloom;
Yet such dull cares shall to the winds be flung,
And Genius brightly radiate my room,
Whilst thou, O Muse! shalt guide my pen and tongue,
And bring my budding thoughts to gorgeous bloom!

ALUMNÆ NOTES.

Miss Bessie Browning Noyes, 1882, has just returned to this country on leave of absence from India. Miss Noyes visited the College on October 20th.

Miss Annie A. Pfaltz, 1882, has returned from Germany and her address is now 104 Gainsborough street, Boston.

Miss Frida M. Raynal, 1897, sailed on June 11, for Hamburg, to spend the summer studying at Berlin University.

Miss Gertrude Devol, 1897, spent the summer in England, France and the Pyrenees, and Italy. She has returned to her work at Waterman Hall, Sycamore, Illinois.

Miss Eleanor Brooks, 1898, and Miss Elsie Maud Sites, 1899, were abroad this summer and are now teaching in the Brookline High School.

Miss Maude W. Clarke, 1899, returned on July 9 from a journey around the world with her father, Rev. Francis E. Clarke, in the interest of the Christian Endeavor Society.

Miss Ethel W. Putney, 1902, returned home September 13 from a ten months' stay abroad, during which she studied at Berlin University and traveled on the Continent.

Miss Emily Etzensperger's (1904) position in Foxboro, referred to in a preceding number of the News, is that of private tutor to Dr. Woodbury's daughters.

The class of 1884 held its twentieth reunion at the College during the Commencement days, thirty-five of the class gathering for the occasion. The class dinner was given on Tuesday evening at Woodland Park Hotel. The chairman of the Arrangements Committee, Miss Katherine P. Jones, presided at the informal after-dinner exercises, cleverly presenting Mrs. Stella Stickney Van Laer, Miss Elsie M. Dwyer, Mrs. Maud Dean Symonds, Mrs. Mary Emerson Lathrop, and the class president, Miss Edith S. Tufts, each of whom gave something grave or gay, in memory of Alma Mater, of The Faculty, of Ourselves—past and present, and of those whom we have loved and mourn. An amusing feature was the reading of a portion of the Prophecy given at the Senior dinner twenty years ago.

On Tuesday afternoon the class had great pleasure in welcoming as its guests in the Shakespeare House, a large gathering of old friends from the class of 1897, past members of the Faculty, and many student friends of the years of its college life. Professor Palmer was present and spoke very beautifully to the friends of Mrs. Palmer who was the much loved honorary member of the class of 1884.

An old time business meeting in Room D one morning, revived the class skill in parliamentary usage, and proved a realistic reproduction of a familiar event of the early '80's. At this time the class, through its legal member, Miss Caroline J. Cook, began proceedings for the adoption of a hardy young child of the mountain ash family, to take the place of the Scion now about attaining its majority and seemingly so much dissatisfied with its environment that a change of home will be necessary.

On Monday the class was delightfully entertained at luncheon by Misses Conant and Bigelow and Amelia Hall, at the Walnut Hill School, and on Thursday, Miss Helen Sanborn received the class at her home in Somerville. There, after a day of gracious and abounding hospitality, good-byes were said and the class separated with the oft-expressed feeling that the days had been full to the utmost of happy experience and memory, and that renewed loyalty and enthusiasm must attend each classmate in her future thought and work for Alma Mater.
